Economic Headlines

- Arizona-based business intelligence, data management, and technology solutions company Edge R&D has selected Douglas County for its expansion. Over the next eight years, the company will bring 69 new jobs to the area, mainly focused in technical and professional roles, including program managers, data and software engineers, and business analysts. The average annual wage for the new positions is expected to be more than 200 percent of the area average annual wage.
- Douglas County has partnered with Lockheed Martin to develop a manufacturing incubator lab at one of Lockheed Martin's facilities in Highlands Ranch. The Ignite Lab will be a high-tech space for companies from across the state to collaborate on projects and share resources, information, and technical capabilities. Through this agreement, local businesses will have new access to the aerospace and defense industries and supply chains. Local students will also have opportunities to work on projects with experts in science, technology, engineering, and math.
- Rocket and space company Blue Origin plans to open a new office at 8744 Lucent Boulevard in Highlands Ranch. The office will be a hub for program management, systems engineering, avionics, software, integration, and mission design in support of their launch vehicle and space systems programs. Blue Origin has 203 jobs posted on its website for Metro Denver.
- Star Harbor Academy, a startup launching a commercial space-flight training center, plans to develop a 53-acre campus in Lone Tree where people can learn to be astronauts and companies can develop new space technologies. Star Harbor will have an airplane for low-gravity parabolic flights, pools for water training that simulate weightlessness, underwater habitats, a high-gravity centrifuge where people can experience the G-force of flight, and other specialized instructional gear. Although the main building is not expected to be finished until 2026, the academy plans to begin training its first classes of astronauts in the next 18 to 24 months.
- Two cities in Douglas County were ranked among the best small cities in the U.S. to start a business, according to a 2022 WalletHub analysis comparing 1,334 small cities with populations between 25,000 and 100,000. Cities were evaluated based on business environment, access to resources, and business costs. Parker ranked No. 219 and Castle Rock ranked No. 228.

Residential Real Estate

- Arizona-based Alliance Residential Realty plans to build a 332-unit apartment complex at the southeast corner of West Waterton Road and North Rampart Range Road in the master-planned community Sterling Ranch in Douglas County. The $100.6 million project, called Broadstone Sterling Ranch, will consist of 10 three-story buildings and one four-story building with a ground floor clubhouse and rooftop deck. The buildings are expected to be move-in ready in late 2023.
- CFC Construction recently topped out Novus, a 240-unit apartment complex in Lone Tree's RidgeGate community. The project is situated on the last parcel of land at the Sky Ridge Station transit-oriented development site. The seven-story apartment complex includes two levels of parking and an integrated retail space. Construction is scheduled for completion in the fourth quarter of 2022.
- Colorado-based general contractor Taylor Kohrs began construction of Farmhouse Villas, a 78-unit housing complex in Parker. The 12-acre space is being developed into a market-rate rental complex spread across 14 buildings comprised of 4-plex and 6-plex villa-style homes. Completion is expected by late January 2023.
- Clearwater Capital Holdings purchased 10 residential lots and one 4.1-acre tract at the Village at Castle Pines, a master-planned community in Castle Pines. Construction of 10 luxury homes is expected to begin in August and the company hopes to have finished lots for the remaining tract by the end of the year. The 10 new homes will each list between $3.9 and $5 million and will likely be 5,500 to 7,000 sq. ft. on half-acre to acre lots.

Consumer Activity

Consumer Confidence Index

The Consumer Confidence Index for the U.S. increased 9.2 percent over the year to 108.1 in the first quarter of 2022. Over the quarter, the national index fell 4.2 percent. The index has now recorded a quarterly decrease in consumer confidence for three consecutive quarters. Prior to the recent declines, the index recorded a quarterly increase for four consecutive quarters following a sharp decline reported in April and May of 2020 due to the COVID-19 pandemic.

Purchasing intentions were down from recent levels at the end of the first quarter as interest rates began to rise. Vacation intentions cooled but intentions to buy big-ticket items like automobiles and many appliances rose somewhat. Looking ahead, inflation and the war in Ukraine will continue to pose downside risks to confidence and may further curb consumer spending.

Colorado is included in the Mountain Region Index and the area reported an 11.2 percent increase in confidence over the year. Over the quarter, confidence in the Mountain Region decreased 3.7 percent.

The average price of a single-family attached home in Douglas County rose 22.8 percent over the year, rising by $88,262.
